About Our New Sanctuary

In 1998, we sat down with a blank sheet of drafting paper and a huge portfolio of dreams. Behind the drawing board was renowned architect, Richard Hayden, of Swanke Hayden Connell Architects.

In addition to raising glittering towers that grace skylines around the world, Richard is especially known for restoration of landmark sites in the United States and Europe, including the bicentennial restoration of the Statue of Liberty. We are so grateful to Richard for donating his expertise to create a magnificent new church facility that captures the timeless essence of our faith, by combining traditional construction materials with a progressive architectural design.

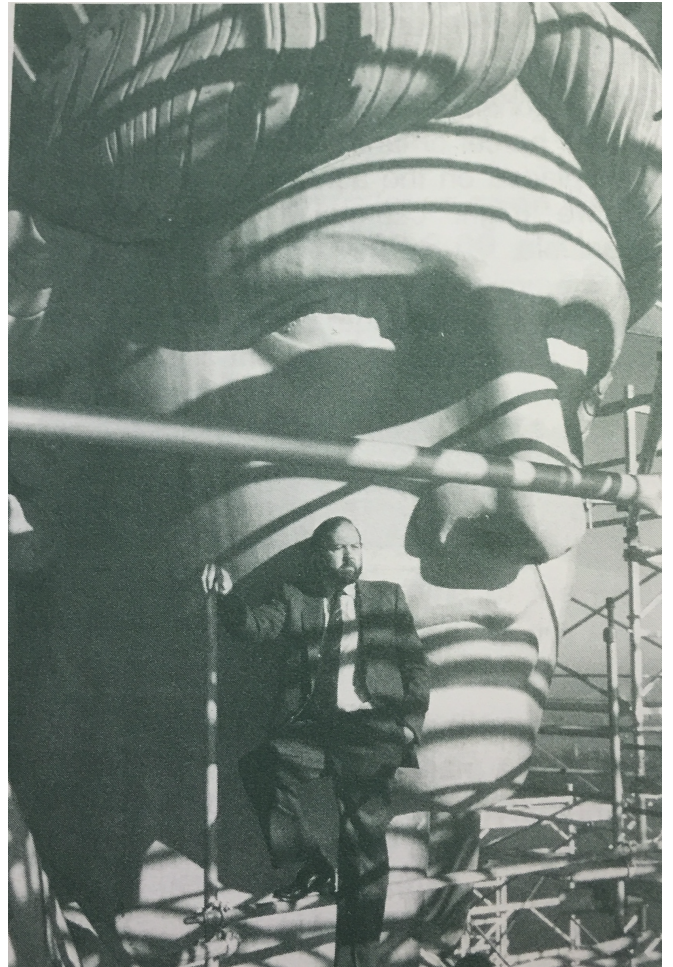

As the sketching began, we first considered the theology we wanted our new building to communicate. Three basic convictions guided the design process:

"God is great, and greatly to be praised!"

Ps 96:4. We believe that our new building ought to reflect something of the majesty and glory of the King of Kings!

"The heavens declare the glory of God, the skies proclaim the work of His hands" Ps 19:1. Creation is His cathedral! When Philip Johnson set out to design the Crystal Cathedral, he started with the premise that "man was created to worship under an open heaven." We agree; so we wanted our building to facilitate, and not obstruct, an open view of creation.

"This promise is for you, your children, and for the generations to come" Acts 2:39. Given the rich architectural heritage of New England, we may have gravitated toward colonial details. We were moved, however, by the conviction that the Church is for today's people . . . and tomorrow's people. Therefore, we wanted our building to communicate that we are relevant and forward-looking.

To these theological convictions, we added a few practical considerations: First, we considered that the Lord has given us an exceptionally beautiful parcel of land. Next, we considered the restrictions that the zoning codes placed on the actual size of the building. Finally, we considered how we might capture a sense of grandeur while remaining fiscally responsible.

As we shared these ideas with Richard Hayden, a sanctuary began to take shape with a majestic, sweeping roofline that rises to a 50-foot peak. Inside the sanctuary, worshippers will be flooded with light from hundreds of panes of glass, running from floor to ceiling, and across the center ridge of the sanctuary. Using “height, light, and sight,” Richard found a way to communicate, “majesty, glory, and an open heaven,” in a forward-looking, cost efficient design.

Next, we sought ways to make our beautiful property a usable extension of the building, itself. Our landscape architect, Craig Studer, flanked the sanctuary with a terrace that steps off onto a rolling lawn. A center promenade leads from the parking lot to a large piazza outside the sanctuary’s atrium foyer. Wherever you go in the building, there are outdoor views and natural light in every direction.

We hope that in a few days you will be able to join us for an open house in the new sanctuary on Sunday, September 24, from 6:00-8:00pm. As you walk through the new building, you will see it differently as you keep in mind the theological and practical values that informed the design.

This VIEW BOOK is designed to acquaint you with some of the finishes, furnishings and fixtures that our design team has selected for Phase 2. We hope you like them. On September 24, there will be an opportunity to contribute toward each of these items. You may wish to donate them in honor of someone. Donation plaques may be affixed, at your request. As you consider the cost of the furnishings and fixtures, please bear in mind that they are especially manufactured to meet stringent codes for commercial/institutional use. This makes the cost of some items higher than typical residential furnishings. In order to get a Certificate of Occupancy from the Town, we must submit compliance certificates for all the electronics, upholstery, carpets, wood finishes, and even the paint on the walls!

If you are unable to join us on September 24, you may donate items using the Furniture Donation Form at the back of the View Book.

Thank you for your partnership in making this dream come true!
